

Dove Block Project

Kelsey Perry

Design Approach

This project is going to focus on restoring a center piece of Geneva. Adding back in the legacy of Arthur Dove while creating additional space for the community to come visit anytime. With that the first floor will be a rotating gallery space. The second floor for the tenant will consist of rentable desking systems. This space will be available for those looking to rent a section, the entire floor, or a single desk

The third floor will feature products that Corbett reps while creating an experience for the customer as they have the products displayed. Throughout the space the goal is to keep the natural light and creating a way finding path for people as they circulate through the building. This will be a goal so that people know that they can access the gallery on the first floor as well as venture up to the third floor to visit the Corbett showroom.

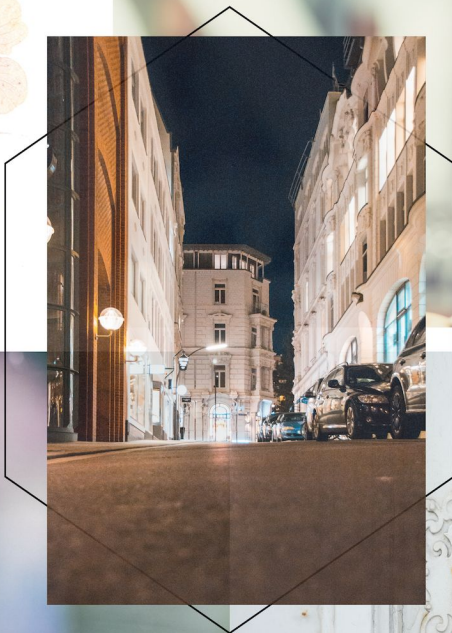

Concept Statement

The design intent for the Dove Block Project will be focused on community. Creating a space where people can come and admire art work while socializing and interacting with the Corbett showroom. Creating a welcoming space while keeping the energy that makes up the centralized location of this Geneva project.
