

RIT | College of Art and Design

Greetings Artists!

During your academic day zoom session, you will meet with your program director, your academic advisor, along with various faculty and staff. You will be reviewing important information for the fall semester and your overall time at RIT. There will be time for questions and answers at the end of each session, and your academic advisor will give you information on how to schedule a one-to-one appointment. Zoom links available to you on the orientation app!

We encourage you to outreach to advisors after August 7 with specific concerns related to scheduling. You can find your advisor's email address on page 2 of the College of Art and Design's (CAD) directory.

If at any time, you need assistance and do not know who to contact, please email the CAD Student Services Team at artdesign.advising@rit.edu. Multiple staff members monitor this email during business hours, and we can answer your questions, or get you to the correct person or office. Please include your name, university identification number (UID), major and year level in the email. We look forward to meeting you this fall!

Please note that there are two different times listed below for graphic design and animation students, based on the student's last name. You only need to join the one designated session.*

Art Exploration and Design Exploration students may join any art and design they choose, and can join multiple sessions of their choosing. If you have determined which major you want to transfer into PRIOR to orientation, please notify RIT Admissions by email and copy your advisor, kris.depalma@rit.edu*
